

Nounsense Story

Teacher directions: For this center you will need white out all the words to the story but the blanks with the directions for the kind of noun. Make this an overhead transparency. Mount the full story (no white out) on construction paper and laminate.

Students will need one overhead pen, the transparency and the mounted sheet of paper.

Directions: You will be playing a game similar to MadLibs. Using the overhead pen fill in the blanks on the overhead. When you finish filling in the blanks, lay the transparency over the paper on _____ construction paper and enjoy your silly "nounsense" story!!

It happened one thing while I was walking down the thing. I wasn't alone; my person had decided to come with me. It was a good thing because what happened next was scary. As we rounded the thing we bumped into a/an strange person with two giant things and a long red thing. We were on our way to the place when this first sighting occurred. Shaking with fright we ran to the first person we saw. Hurriedly we told our story. The person brought us inside the place and gave us some thing. This seemed to calm us down a bit and we proceeded to answer questions concerning the person. As we looked through the thing we both screamed because standing there was this person. It nodded its thing and ducked out of sight. Excitedly, we pointed at the thing. They searched every thing and thing, but couldn't locate what we had seen. Thinking we had perhaps been imagining the whole thing, we said our good-byes and headed out the thing. We got half way down the place when we heard a thing. We turned around and guess what was standing there, a/an person. It stood on its thing, shook its thing, and hopped into a/an thing. Moments later there was a tremendous thing as the person took off in the direction of the place. The next day person came to talk to us and we once again told our amazing story. We never did discover who that person was.
